Water Cases Called For Hearing Tomorrow

The Public Service Commission which will begin its Western Pennsylvania hearings in Pittsburgh and Greensburg tomorrow with the largest calendar scheduled for this end of the state, probably will take up matters pertaining to municipal contracts. Additional full crew complaints likely will be filed and arrangements made for the Philadelphia Electric hearings and the argument in the industrial railroad cases.

Tuesday the commission will divide. The commissioners sitting in Pittsburgh will hear the slag rate cases from the National Tube company and the complants of the boroughs of Emsworth and Ben Avon, McKees Rocks, Bellevue and Avalon and Stowe township against the Ohio Valley Water company. The slag cases will be heard at the Chamber of Commerce and the water case at the court house.

The Beaver Sand company case against the Beaver Valley Water company is also to come up. A meeting will be held with representatives of the Pennsylvania railroad and the East Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce regarding time for an inspection of the Main street grade crossing in East Pittsburgh.

At Greensburg a sitting will be held in the court house in the Westmoreland Water company case.

Wednesday the Pittsburgh Subway company and the city of Pittsburgh will make application for declaration by the commission of terms on which a contract would be approved. The same day water cases will be continued and application made for a charter for the Maple Glen and Maxwell Ferry company to operate between Washington and Fayette counties.

LOCAL TALENT PLAY PROMISING

With the advent of the last week before. James S Russell and his players give their farce comedy and vaudeville at the High school auditorium Friday night, everything is in readiness for one of the best local entertainments ever offered the Monessen public. Rehearsals have been going on for some time, three a week, and wonderful progress has been made for amateurs. Finishing touches will be put on this exceedingly interesting and attractive little play this week and by Friday night it is expected those who attend will receive many times their money's worth

Tickets are being disposed of so rapidly that it is believed now the auditorium will be filled. As the Boy Scouts is an organization which comes to the relief in any instance where it is needed, they have this time come to the front in a ticket sale and also will act as ushers As this entertainment is being given free of cost by Mr. Russel and his players for the benefit of the hospital, the Boy Scouts have volunteered to do their little mite.

Interest in the event of this Friday night at the High school auditorium is expected to increase daily, as more is known about the play and players. A neat program booklet will be published and given each patron.

Local Arson Case is Listed For Trial Today

The case of Pete Lucarcis for arson is scheduled to come up in Greensburg today, and many local witnesses were called to the county seat to testify. The case is attracting considerable attention on account of the peculiar conditions surrounding it

Lucarcis lived in a house on Park Way as a tenant of Shuster & Reed and one night last April the house was discovered on fire which originated in the cellar and the front room When the firemen arrived and extinguished the flames, the premises seemed to indicate that the fire had been started by someone for the purpose of destroying the place

Sometime prior to this incident Lucarcis had gone to Brownsville where he engaged in business, but had not removed his household affects and they were still in the house.

It was alleged that the tenant had been in the house shortly before the fire was discovered and had taken the midnight train for Brownsville a few moments before the fire was discovered The State Deputy Fire Marshall was notified and he came to Monessen at once and after inspecting the premises he ordered the arrest of Lucarcis.

The trial was called last August but was postponed until the present term. A number of the firemen have been subpoenaed as witnesses and are in court today to testify as to the condition of the house when they arrived the night of the fire as well as to their opinion of its supposed origin.

Street Car Crashes Into Auto, Three Escape

Three men narrowly escaped with their lives at 10 o'clock this morning when a Pittsburgh street car crashed into the automobile of Pete Williams at the intersection of the road leading to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital. The driver started to ascend the hill towards the hospital and was just leaving the track when the car crashed into the auto. The men jumped in time to escape injury but the automobile was badly damaged. The car was being driven by Hazel Campbell and the two other passengers were Emil Fall and William Bramley. They were on the way to the hospital with a warrant for Jim Bulock

"The Island of Regeneration" at the Olympic tomorrow. Reverend Cyrus Townsend Brady never wrote a more absorbing book than his "Island of Regeneration." And there was never a story written by anyone that offered greater possibilities to film-drama.

Man Barely Escaped Being Shot to Death

Sam Sanford, colored, was shot and stabbed by Jim Bulock also colored, at Castle Garden flat this morning between the hours of three and four o'clock. One bullet lodged in Sanford's back and he was stabbed over the heart. It is said he will recover. According to the story of Bulock who is a prisoner in the local jail, Sanford was a guest in the house of Frankie Layton down stairs when a quarrel started and Sanford left the place and entered his, Bulock's rooms. A fight started between the two men and according to Bulock, Stanford threw a bottle at him. Bulock claims he then shot in self defense.

While Bulock is a prisoner in the local jail awaiting the outcome of the injuries of the man he so desperately wounded, his wife is a patient in the Monessen-Charleroi hospital, having swallowed poison on Saturday. As soon as it became known what the woman had done, she was rushed to the hospital and it is said she will recover. Whether she took the poison on purpose or by mistake is not yet known, but it is likely that an investigation will be made and the whole affair cleaned up. Castle Garden seems to be a rendezvous for riots and disorderly people. Sanford, who was shot, is still at his home.

—Cyrus Townsend Brady's unique romance, the famous story of "The Island of Regeneration" in six parts, with Edith Storey, Antonio Moreno and S Rankin Drew, directed by Harry Davenport, under the personal supervision of J Stuart Blackton and Albert E. Smith. One half of your life will be missed if you make the mistake of missing this picture. Tomorrow at the Olympic. 1t

The Marrying Wilsons

It was an ill wind that blew the marrying Wilsons into the White House, but that same ill wind seems to have brought a lot of opportunities to a great many marrying people.

Popping up through the weeds of grief which grew at the nation's capitol since the Wilsons invaded that section are orange blossoms and wedding buds in rich array. Daniel Cupid has been banging away with his little bow and arrow at targets which would command little or no attention in less favored locations.

President Wilson and his daughters and all those coming in contact with them, have a right to marry when and where they please, but the distinguished President and his family should know that they have other functions and they should not attempt to occupy all the floor space with their love affairs.

If necessary the world may be willing to stand still long enough to have the Presidential nuptials and the nuptials of the President's children performed, but the world should not be kept waiting too long. Let the marrying Wilsons marry and be done with it. Let them clear the hooks for other and more important work. Their parade is too long. It is growing tiresome, and the announcement from the White House that the event will occur "some time late in December" is too indefinite. The work of the nation, and marrying is becoming an important part of that work at the White House, should go along orderly and methodically. Don't keep the audience waiting. There is danger of getting cold feet.—Greensburg Tribune.

Dangers of Speculation

Thirty years ago she lived in one of the finest streets of the city. Her husband provided her with a carriage and footman, and she had her diamond earrings and her "sealskin sack" which things—in the eighties—were the test of sound prosperity and social elegance. Today she lives in one room and sells tidies for a living. She crochets little lace squares worth about a dollar, but old friends pay her $5 a piece for them, to save her from the "charity" she dreads. And this is a true story.

Stock speculation did it. Buying on margin, the street, bulls, bears—you know the lingo of the game which wrecked and killed her husband. The game goes on. "War stocks soar." And next week, next year, 30 years hence, thousands of wives will be paying in poverty and tears for today's "Remarkable activity in Wall street."

AGED GRANDMOTHER

So Weak She Could Hardly Stand—Made Strong by Vinol

Right here in Monessen we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

Woodbridge, N. J.—"My Grandma was recovering from the grippe and was so weak she could hardly stand, and as she keeps house for my grandfather and myself, she could not get around at all. She had taken cod liver oil and many other medicines but nothing seemed to do her any good. At last we heard of Vinol and tried it, and Grandma commenced to feel better right away, and got strong very soon, so she gets around as well as ever. We all praise Vinol for it as a splendid medicine.—Myrtle H. Bunn.

The reason Vinol is so successful in restoring strength to the aged is because of the rare combination of tonic iron, the curative medicinal extractives of fresh cods' livers, beef peptone and mild native wine. It supplies iron to the blood, quickens the appetite, aids digestion, promotes proper assimilation of food, and enriches the blood, and brings back the strength of renewed health.—Hirsch Drug Co., Monessen, Pa.

Renewed testimony; tested by time.

Mrs. A. W. Jenkins, 25 McKee avenue, Monessen, says: "I suffered from attacks of kidney trouble. I first noticed a severe pain in my back and thought it was lumbago. I frequently had dizzy spells. My kidneys didn't act properly and the kidney secretions were unnatural. Before I had taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Hirsch Drug Co., I was greatly benefitted." A Multiplication Trick.

Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345679, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

Select 4×9=36	Select 6×9=54.
12345679	12345679
36	54
74074074	49382716
37037037	61728395
444444444	666666666

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected. Any figure used will turn the same trick.

Dogs of War.

In the British army the Airedale terrier is used extensively. His coat is of such nature that it is suited to any climate and he is a highly intelligent dog with a wonderful power of scenting and hearing, is of a desirable size and is often used as a scout or sentry as well as an aid to the Red Cross service. The Airedale can readily distinguish the smell of his master from that of a stranger. These military dogs are taught not to bark. When they scent the enemy they give a low growl and often will stand like a pointer. They are of great service as night sentries.—Argonaut.

Tomboy.

Verstegan gives the following origin of the word "tomboy" as applied to romping girls: "Tumbe, to dance, tumbod, danced; hereof we yet call a wench that skippeth or leapeth lyke a boy, a tomboy; our name also of tumbling cometh from hense."

Variable.

He—Do you believe that two can live as cheaply as one? She—That depends a good deal on the income and expenditure of the one selected as the basis of comparison.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Rich Relations.

Probably the worst thing about rich relations is the way they look down on you because you are not rich enough to look down on them.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Turkey Stone.

The turquoise, formerly known as Turkey stone, derives its name from the fact that the first specimens were introduced through Turkey.

The measure of a man's sin is the difference between what he is and what he might be.—Jordan.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

CHAPTER LXVII.

In the Bowels of the Earth.

Count Frederick and his little band of warriors did not at once arrive up on the solution of the mystery of the strange white woman. The childlike caprice of the natives led him hither and thither, to this village and to that; so that a considerable time had elapsed before at length he found himself upon the scene of the late fateful happenings, although himself at that time still ignorant alike of the occurrences and their cause. To him this was but one more savage village, one more set of difficulties, one more series of disappointments.

They brought him, guarded by his own warriors, and hence for the time safe, into the presence of the same chief who had devoted Kitty Gray so ruthlessly to the sacrifice. To Count Frederick he was only one more savage with whom he could hold no converse.

But even as he stood before the hut of this old ruffian Count Frederick's eye caught sight of something which caused his heart to leap.

It was a little object, an unimportant item which might have escaped any other eye than his. Yet his gaze was drawn to it irresistibly.

It was a bit of cloth, a torn trifle of soiled and sea-encrusted checkered cloth, a portion of a woman's garb, Count Frederick recognized it at once as a part of the dress skirt in which he had last seen Kitty Gray garbed There was no mistaking it. He knew it as well as the pattern of his own apparel.

She had been here! The mysterious white woman was Kitty Gray!

Now indeed Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen became the man of action. Away now with doubt and despair—and welcome again the fierce resolve of a brave man determined to live and conquer, determined once more to achieve the dearest purpose of his life!

He caught from the post of the door which had torn off this fragment of cloth, and held it before the gaze of the chief—before the eyes of all his men. They knew what he meant when he demanded to see the wearer of this bit of cloth. They dreaded the sight of his anger, fell back before the menace of the little steel tube, unfamiliar as it was to them. They knew that this man would kill unless he found that which he sought—the captive but now rescued from the doom of fire.

Frederick's own men fell in behind him, and a right lusty contest directly arose between these two factions or tribes, whichever they may have been. As for Frederick himself, he had not time for matters of this sort. He hurried to hut after hut, tore aside roof after roof, wall after wall, hunting for the woman whom above all things he most desired to see. He did not find her. His questions brought no response.

Drawn by a horrible suspicion of the meaning of this fire built at the brink of the pit, he hurried thither to join the group of lingerers there, and now by mere chance found confirmation—and found hope as well.

He saw the print of a small boot heel in the sand, other footmarks just beyond—it was a trail. Yes, yes, she had been there. But the footprints ceased. The trail ended as though the maker of it had flown up into the air. Beyond, the imprint of large and misshapen feet still led.

Count Frederick now turned savagely upon these gibbering creatures about him, and the meaning of his demand was perfectly apparent to them. Threatening to throw them into the fire which they had prepared for another, he got from them shrieks of protest, much shaking of the head in denial, and much pointing on toward the forest which lay ahead. Some came to him and showed him the two lines of footprints, the one line continuing on, and pointed to the forest, although themselves not venturing to follow.

With a new terror in his heart, yet feeling a conviction that Kitty Gray still lived, he did not pause to wreak a present vengeance upon these creatures, but hurried on along the broken trail.

The doglike craft of one or two of his own band of savages aided him. Not slacking speed, they pointed out where the trail ran. Now and again Count Frederick could see on the earth the imprint of the woman's feet where for a time she had rested or been put down. At length, at the brink of the abyss before which Kitty Gray so recently had stood, he saw the double imprint again—where both captive and captor had stood and looked down.

The trail led on, and down, whither none could guess. Frederick of Gretzhoffen did not stop to guess, but plunged forward impulsively. Whoever or whatever might be this creature which had carried her off, here at least was his lair.

The dusty floors of the cavern, lit by the flare of such torches as they found ready for such work, still retained the record. Captor and captive had walked here. Deeper and deeper into the caverns under the hill they followed the trail, until at length the distracted eyes of Count Frederick saw on ahead something to give him pause.

He saw Kitty Gray standing, alive, apparently unhurt, in a vast apartment of these subterranean vaults! Beyond, the floor seemed to break off—to what depth he could not guess. No egress at either extremity of the subterranean chamber could be seen from where he stood. The trail led thither, to where she stood—to where at her side stood also a strange misshapen figure of a man, or what had been a man.

"Mademoiselle!" cried Count Frederick, high and clear. "Courage!" and sprang forward.

Now this strange creature that had brought Kitty Gray hither seemed to fancy himself about to be robbed of his captive. For one moment he stood awaiting the onslaught of Count Frederick and his allies, then with a hoarse cry he caught Kitty Gray up in his arms again. A pace or so, and she was held suspended above the unknown abyss which lay below. Menacingly, her captor turned upon his assailant a face which at least offered one conclusion.

He made no coherent speech, but his attitude spoke loud.

Count Frederick halted. One step more, and the girl would be plunged into eternity.

THE WHARTONS TELL ONE ON THEMSELVES

Here's a good one from the Pathe producers, Wharton, Inc., at Ithaca, N. Y. Recently in filming a "Wallingford" story which dealt with high finance as applied to skunk farms, they took down the big Wharton sign over the main entrance to Renwick Park and put up one with the words "Skunk Farm" on it instead. When the pictures had been taken and the first print was being projected on the screen they were first amazed and then carried away with laughter to find they had neglected to remove a smaller sign on the foot passenger gate, directly below the skunk sign, which read as follows: "No one not a member of the cast admitted."

Little Talks on Health & Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health

STUFFY SCHOOL ROOMS

If it were possible to make all schools open air schools, it would unquestionably be of benefit to the pupils. Mind and body would both develop more advantageously. Conditions forbid this but that is no reason why school rooms should be turned into closed ovens with the advent of cooler weather.

There are thousands of school rooms that depend upon some direct method of heating with no special ventilating apparatus to provide for the admission of pure air. Temperature is too often the sole factor considered by the teacher who forgets that dry ventilated air will re-act unfavorably on the health of the pupils.

A pan of water should be used on stoves to insure the evaporation of a sufficient amount of water to increase the humidity. This will make a lower temperature more comfortable than a higher degree of heat without the moisture.

A frequent flushing of the air in school rooms by opening the windows and putting the pupils through calisthenics exercises will prove an effective and stimulating procedure. The time that it takes will be more than made up by the quickened activities of both pupils and teacher.

Window boards which will permit the admission of air between the top and bottom sash can be secured with slight effort and expenditure. Cleanliness of air is equally as important as clean water and food stuffs.

There is no reason why children should not be permitted to wear their wraps in school if the temperature is somewhat low. This is the rule in open air schools and it in no way interferes with the school work. When the children leave the school they are exercising and the vigorous action makes up for the difference in temperature between indoors and outdoors.

The teacher who understands the rudiments of hygiene can add immeasurably to the well being of the children and accomplish much toward giving them a proper idea of the value of healthful and cleanly living.

Personal hygiene is no fad. The Greeks taught it three thousand years ago as an essential in the building of a vigorous nation.

The want of health measures and over attention to the three R's often sees the child in an early grave.

—"The Underground City," the 18th episode of "The Broken Coin" with Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, by Emerson Hough. Today at the Olympic. 1t

Commissioner Elect Deeds Given Reception

The Ligonier American says: "A genuine old time celebration and serenade was tendered the successful local candidates Wednesday evening. A good sized delegation, with tin cans and plenty of lung power, assembled at the Nicely Livery about 8:45. Joe Nicely proceeded to produce a large black mule and headed the procession that started for the office of Geo. W. Deeds, county commissioner elect.

"Upon the arrival of the mule at the entrance of the Deeds office, several men forming the delegation entered Mr. Deed's office and politely informed him he was wanted outside. Donning his hat, Mr. Deeds was soon out and immediately placed upon the mule's back and the march around the public square began. It was somewhat hilarious at first, the mule refusing to respond owing to the unusual demonstration, however once started, all went well. The newly elected councilmen, constable, etc., all were hunted and compelled to take a ride on the Democratic mule.

"At the conclusion of the demonstration, the candidates treated the crowd to cigars, ice cream and candy. Mr. Deeds delivered one of the most eloquent speeches Ligonier people ever listened to and great showers of applause followed."

Mills Resuming

Sharon, Pa., Nov. 8—After 12 months' idleness orders have been received by Superintendent W. C. Fletcher to get the Sharon works of the American Steel Foundries company ready for immediate resumption at full capacity. The plant employs about 600 men.

According to announcement made in New York, the American Steel Foundries company has received about $20,000,000 worth of orders for war munitions and it is expected that a part of this work will be handled at the Sharon works, as well as railroad supplies.

With the resumption there will not be an idle concern in Sharon, and only three blast furnaces in that entire valley will be out of commission.

PEARL WHITE

"THE DIRECTOR WHO CROSSES MY PATH AT EVERY TURN IN CAREER—MR. THEODORE WHARTON."

By Pearl White—The Pathe Star.

Miss Pearl White, the famous moving picture star, can hardly be called superstitious, but she feels that Theodore Wharton, the Pathe producer, is her guiding star, and when he advises anything she can be depended upon to follow the advice without any question. She explains this feeling as follows:

"About five years ago I was leading woman of a stock company playing near New York, and was just about played out. I'd had no vacation in a long time, and my voice needed a rest. Mrs. O. A. Miller joined the company one week and suggested that I go into moving pictures. 'Sure! I'm willing,' said I, 'but where can I get a job?' She gave me a list of film companies, so the next morning I dressed in my best, went to the theatre, rehearsed my next week's play until noon, and then caught a train for New York. It was January, the thermometer was below zero, and there was several feet of snow on the ground. Oh, yes, be sure I remember it very well!

"Arriving in New York I set out on foot to a film studio in 19th Street. You see money was scarce with me then, and I wanted to save that nickel. I asked to see the man who engaged the players and was asked to wait. After a while a man walked out and said, 'I am Mr. Wharton, the director, and the man who engages people.' I was very young and very small, and he seemed about eight feet tall. I asked him for a job and, as he afterwards admitted, he took me for a young thing from the country with a stage bee buzzing in her bonnet. So, in a very fatherly way he gave me a lot of advice, told me it was hard to get an engagement in pictures, and still harder to keep it—that if I had a job of any sort to stick to it. He said he had no opening for me at that time but later if I was in New York permanently, he might be able to use me once in a while.

"I went back to my show somewhat disappointed but still determined. The next week I came again to New York and saw the second name on my list. There the director took me more seriously, and offered me an engagement beginning with the next week I stayed with that company for one year, and then determined to try a bigger concern. So I went over to Jersey to the Pathe Studio and asked to see a director. In a couple of minutes I was in the presence of Theodore Wharton again. This time he was more encouraging and recommended me to a fellow director I was engaged and remained with Pathe for some years, but Theodore Wharton left the company the day after I joined and I didn't meet him again until my affairs again took a turn.

"I had just finished "The Perils of Pauline" and my contract was nearly over with Pathe. I was undecided whether to stay in pictures or go back to the dramatic stage or into vaudeville. The Pathe people informed me that they wanted me to play in a new serial to be produced by some new directors. I was asked to meet them. I walked into the office and there was Theodore Wharton again! My mind was at once made up. I said to Mr. Wharton 'Every time my career takes a turn you cross my path first and it has always meant more success for me. I will play Elaine!'"

LEHIGH VALLEY R. R. GIVES BEST TRAIN FOR PATHE PICTURE.

The Whartons, who make motion pictures for Pathe, succeeded recently in securing the most remarkable concession ever obtained from a railroad. In filming the first episode of "Wallingford" it was necessary to show the private car in which that famous high financier dazzles the inhabitants of the little "tank" towns. The Lehigh Valley R. R. not only permitted the Whartons to attach a big steel flat car, properly equipped, to their best train, "The Black Diamond" Express, but stopped the train twice to allow for the taking of scenes. The special car had to be sent all the way from Buffalo for the purpose, but the railroad supplied that also, fixing it up specially according to the Wharton' instructions.

Got Rough Treatment

The High school football team traveled to Monongahela Friday and as was previously stated won by the score of 16-4. But Monongahela not being satisfied with giving us a raw deal on the football field, kept up their boxing antics with the rooters. While several of the Monessen rooters were returning home, some Monongahela rowdies took opportunity to make up for the lost game by cleaning up on the Monessen students. They did land a couple of "shiners" but that is not the end of it.

If this is the treatment that is to be accorded to a High school team and its rooters who showed every due respect to Monongahela while they were here last year, it would not be a bad idea to cut them from our schedule the same as Charleroi and other teams have done. Let them be isolated until they learn how to treat a respectable crowd of High school students when they come to play football.

Happiness Turned to Sadness

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 8—Happiness turned to sadness in the home of Christ S. Schewinberg of this place when at 5 o'clock Saturday morning the little family was rejoicing because of the birth of a boy, and 12 hours later was mourning the loss of Hazel Mae, a daughter who died of burns. The child with a younger sister was playing about a stove in the kitchen when the latter placed a hot poker against her sister's clothing, which ignited.

Her screams attracted the mother, who was confined to her bed on the second floor. When Mrs. Schewinberg reached the floor, the child's clothing was ablaze. Neighbors extinguished the flames, but the child died a short time later.
